

Evidence to Action: Challenges and opportunities of evidence collection and use in MFAT programme evaluations

Background on Programme evaluations

UFE Principles

REMEMBER M&E INFORMATION IS USEFUL
ONLY IF IT IS USED!

NEW ZEALAND

Benefits

Challenges

Evidence use

So, did it work?

Reflections

Quotes

The evaluation has truly challenged us to look at the way we partner with the country in its development journey with fresh eyes and we look forward to stepping up to that challenge.

There had been differing historic views on the programme within MFAT, and the evaluation allowed for an airing of these views, and the collation of substantive evidence to demonstrate the success of the ... approach.

I found this evaluation quite useful in gaining a high level overview of the programme as well as challenging my understanding of what works and what doesn't.

Contact details

Rosalind Dibley

Knowledge and Learning
Adviser

Pacific and Development Group

Rosalind.Dibley@mfat.govt.nz